

Melissa Newman

Melissa Newman is an award-winning journalist and writer, having spent 20 years in the newspaper industry. She has called Southeastern Kentucky home all her life and is in her second term as a commissioner for the Kentucky Commission on Women.

In addition to her work in media, Melissa is the author of three novels and teaches in the Department of Communication at Eastern Kentucky University's main campus in Richmond.

Melissa lives with her husband, Frank, in Barbourville, and is committed to raising the status of women in Kentucky through her work on the commission.
